Inukshuk: performance charter with huge exterior spaces

Built at Baltic Yachts with naval architecture by German Frers, the 32.61 metre Inukshuk is a high-performance sailing yacht with vast, open deck areas, a stylish design and a telescopic lifting keel for performance cruising.

With accommodation for eight guests in four cabins with the ability to extend to 10 guests, Inukshuk has space for four crew and is cruising the Caribbean this winter.

A retractable bimini over the cockpit gives a versatile aspect to the area, while her main saloon is attractive and spacious. Inukshuk's guest cabins are decorated in a simple style with design elements that are reminiscent of her Inuit name, which indicates a form of sign communication by sculpture.

Her interior features limed oak and driftwood in metallic grey hues, and accents of decorative tile and natural stone. An office is adjacent to the master and VIP suites forward, while two twin suites are located aft of the main saloon.
