INUKSHUK

Built at Baltic Yachts with naval architecture by German Frers, the 107-foot Inukshuk is a high-performance sailing yacht with vast open deck areas, a stylish design and a telescopic lifting keel for performance cruising.

With accommodations for eight guests in four cabins (and the ability to sleep 10), Inukshuk has four crew and will be cruising the Caribbean this winter. A retractable bimini over the cockpit gives versatility to the area, while her main salon is attractive and spacious. Inukshuk's guest cabins are decorated in a simple style with design elements that are reminiscent of her name, which hails from an Inuit word. The interior features limed oak and driftwood in metallic gray hues and accents of decorative tile and natural stone. An office is located adjacent to the master and VIP stateroom forward while two twin staterooms are located aft of the main salon.
