NAUTA YACHTS_BALTIC 130'

The brief for the Reichel Pugh Nauta Baltic 130' was for a blisteringly fast yet quiet racer with levels of space, speed and comfort that would outdo the owner's previous vessel. The result is that Nauta ended up designing its largest ever sailing yacht in its fourth collaboration with Baltic Yachts. The craft's waterlines, appendages and sail plan are, however, the work of Reichel/Pugh whose working relationship with Nauta dates back to the 84' My Song in 1998. The Baltic 130' has a powerful carbon pre-preg hull and a lifting keel with a draught that ranges from 4.5 and 7 metres, but displaces a feather-light 102 tons thanks to futuristic hull, deck, bulkwark, rig and interior build technologies. VPP predictions stand at 16.5 knot speed in displacement mode and up to 26/28 planing. The 130' exudes sleek aggression courtesy of a very low-slung deckhouse profile, yet a generous stern provides space for guests to relax al fresco and the guest cockpit is versatile enough for cocktails, dining or sunning.
